

Local Low Budget

Scientific Community

Low budget research projects are often overlooked in favor of high budget projects.

Low budget research projects are often overlooked in favor of high budget projects. This is because high budget projects are more visible and more likely to attract funding. However, low budget projects can be just as valuable and can provide a great starting point for researchers who are just starting out. They can also be a great way to explore a new area of research or to test out a new idea. Low budget projects can also be a great way to build a research team and to develop a research program. They can also be a great way to attract funding and to build a reputation in the scientific community.

2019-2020
2020-2021
2021-2022

Research Community
2019-2020 Research Community

Research Community

Research Community 2019-2020

Year	Research Community	Research Community	Research Community
2019-2020	Research Community	Research Community	Research Community
2020-2021	Research Community	Research Community	Research Community
2021-2022	Research Community	Research Community	Research Community